WHEAT AND FLOUR PRICES WILL DROP

On Account of a Reduction in Freight Rates-Winter Potatoes Are

Wheat and flour will most probably go down shortly in consequence of a rebate n the freight rates from Washington and cents per 100, but a change, effective on Saturday, will pull it down to 40 cents. The effect of this will be seen in the local markets before the end of the week, and flour will follow suit, or, at least, it ought to, next week. The bottom price for outs has gone up from $1.60 to $1.65, and that of rolled oats from $1.70 to $1.75. Another change was registered in the vegetable market yesterday, in the shape of a big raise in the price of winter po tatoes. In carload lots these are worth $1.50 per cwt, and the jobbers are ask-

$1.50 per cwt., and the jobbers are asking $1.75. What with these prices, and the price of new spuds at $1.50 for twenty pounds, consumers are having to shell out for tubers.

Things wore their usual Tussday aspect in the fish markets yesterday. No shipments came in and the stock that was left over was snapped up in the morning. Poultry figures are beginning to get stiff. The local jobbers have not put up their prices to the retailers yet, but the supply in the East is getting rather light and the home-grown products are also a

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, April 25.—The wool market is generally dull, with manufacturers buying supplies only when forced by necessity. Interest seems centered in the Western crop. Fleece wools are steady on the basis of recent sales.

Practically all interest in the wool market is now directed to the West, where dealers are buying largely of the new crops. The course of prices thus far has been a great disappointment to the trade. Prices have been from ½ to le above last year for the same clips. Dealers here declare that indications point to a repetition of last year's experience, when the prices were so high as to cut off the year's profit. Territory wools are well cleaned up.
